

Care for God's Creation

(Nearly) Spring update 2025

Weathering the storms?

Nothing reminds us that we live on an Island quite as much as the winter! Havoc is quick to land where the boat can not! With severe weather—trees falling like twigs and roads turned in to rivers (or ice rinks). It highlights to us, more so than most that the weather is changing and we are at its mercy. Thoughts of self-sufficiency and resilience are very much in the fore. Many say that climate change is too bigger thing for one person to tackle. Well, yes, that is true—which is why if we all do a little bit we can make a better future for everyone. Louise 474275—carbon.zero@sodorandman.im

A prayer for:

Gods protection for all those affected by natural disasters, fire, flood and freeze.

Gods strength for the rescue workers, emergency services and kind souls working to alleviate suffering.

Gods comfort and loving light on all those experiencing loss, pain and suffering.

Amen

What type of organiser are you?

They say that there are two types of people. Imagine you are going on holiday. One person has the passports, tickets—saved to phone AND printed (in triplicate- just in case), the map and a detailed itinerary. The other doesn't know where they are going or what time the ferry is..... (and usually these two people are married to each other).

Whatever type of organiser you are, the Church of England has you covered this year with a 2025 Environmental days and events calendar.

There are some really interesting days coming up that we can celebrate as a church and use to engage with exciting community events.

For those who like to pre-plan, scan the QR code below for the full years dates, for everyone else, the next few months are below:

Quick fire questions on net zero

In a series of short videos produced by the grant-making charity Benefact Trust, Net Zero Programme Director Julian Atkins shares why the Church of England is aiming to reach net zero by 2030.

He answers questions such as 'why not wait for the cost of emission reducing technology to go down?', 'why is net zero key to the Church of England's mission?' and discusses the easy steps that everyone can take to start reducing their carbon footprint.
